Dear Office of Information and Regulatory Affairs Hunt:

I would like to say that as an American citizen who not only respects and values my grandparents contribution to my life, but also as a human being who has come to understand that regardless of age, sex or nationality, we are all equal in the eyes of God, I must vehemently oppose your morally bankrupt conclusion that senior citizen's lives are in any way less valuable than those of other Americans. This incredibly erroneous and heartless conclusion will not only lead to thousands of Americans suffering from poor health, but it will play out in millions of other ways that we have no way of predicting in the areas of environmental destruction, air pollution, food supply and all the regulations concerning such quality of life issues that will unknowingly base their decisions on this false and shameful conclusion. I ask with every fiber of my being that you save yourself and your country from the physical and spiritual retribution that is sure to come from such an unsound policy.

Sincerely,

Craig Havens

Sincerely,

Craig Havens
