The Department of Education expects to obligate $5 million of its $10 million in emergency funds for the New York City schools. Education has a preliminary plan from New York on how these funds will be used, but various details still need to be worked out. Completing this process should take only a few more weeks.

The Department has no specific plans to obligate the remaining $5 million in emergency funds. Congress instructed the Department not to spend all of its emergency funds on September 11th response, but instead use a portion of the funds for other jurisdictions and emergencies.

The funds were used for activities directly related to the terrorist attacks on the United States on September 11, 2001. Funding provided temporary jobs in disaster recovery, restored capacity to process unemployment insurance claims lost in terrorist attack, and provided on-site safety and health monitoring at the attack sites.

<sup>1</sup> As of May 31, 2002, DOL had not obligated these funds because New York State had not submitted the required Statement of Work (SOW) and spending plan. However, on July 2, 2002, DOL reported that New York State had completed the SOW and plan, which awaited final approval by the Governors Office before they were to be sent to DOL by July 8, 2002. DOL is expected to expedite its review of the SOW and plan before structuring the grant agreement and then obligating the funds.
